Description:

This book will make a beautiful gift for the dog lovers on your list! Linda Gray Sexton's memoir is about Dalmatians -- all 38 of them! -- who brought vivid, real happiness into her life, from her childhood on, yet the love she feels for each of these characters translates well to everyone's love for the beloved canine companions in their lives. What makes this memoir stand out is the incredible honesty and openness, together with the excellent story-telling. Sexton brings you with her on her life's journey, through the joyful times and the rock bottom times. You come to know each dog so well -- and you mourn their illnesses and deaths as fully as you cheer them on in their mischievous puppyhoods and distinctive approaches to life. To give you a taste of this beautiful book: When Linda starts to date a great guy named Brad Clink, the real test is how Brad will receive her beloved dog Gulliver, who has helped her through deeply difficult times. This is one of the many moments in the book that hits home so gloriously: As Gulliver took off and began to bark -- his approach steady and fast as a fighter jet -- Brad dropped to one knee and opened his arms, welcoming the speedy bullet of a dog straight into his chest. Gulliver flew in on target, all elbow and knees, and began to lick Brad's face with ecstasy. Brad returned each kiss with a nuzzle of his own, thumping Gulliver happily on the ribs, calling him a good ole boy. He'd kissed my dog before he'd even kissed me. A wonderful book about the huge contributions dogs make to our lives, and the happiness possible in our coexistence.
